Like you, I have watched Arizona grow and change. Unfortunately, despite this growth, our leadership at the State Capitol has consistently failed to provide the kind of political leadership it takes to be a first-class state.

Right now, Arizona is in desperate need of new leadership. That's why I have decided to run for State Representative in the Arizona House for District #4.

The past several months have demonstrated that our so-called "leaders" just don't seem to be listening to the people. However, I take the title of "Representative" very seriously. I am confident that I can bring common sense to the Capitol and provide District #4 with a State Representative who will listen, fight hard for my constituents, and get results.

As a successful small business owner, I understand the importance of business development in Arizona. More importantly, as a husband and father, I understand the struggles that families face in this state. Every day, Diane — my wife of over 17 years — and our four beautiful children remind me just how important it is for us to make Arizona a better place to live and work.

My campaign is focused on conservative leadership; building a vibrant, business-friendly, diverse economy; immigration reform; and education issues. I believe these are the issues where Arizona needs a new voice, and some new leadership at the Capitol.

As your State Representative, I can make a difference by leading on all these issues.
*But I need your support!

Leadership for Arizona

Our representatives must be focused on their primary responsibilities of government oversight and cutting state spending. I believe we need innovative ideas that will balance the budget and protect the vital services that benefit our families and businesses.

My opponents are for the most part career politicians. They have been in office for years and have presided over the largest state financial crisis in history. This lack of leadership would get any person fired from his job — yet they are asking the voters to give them a promotion!

That kind of disrespect for the people is just one more reason I feel strongly that I must step forward and offer the voters of District #4 a real conservative voice.

Jobs Matter

Arizona needs a jobs plan that goes beyond real estate and construction. We must do more to attract new businesses to the state. That change begins at the Capitol. I will support legislation for lower commercial property taxes, plus push for reform of the corporate tax structure to attract more businesses and build our economy.

Arizona families must be able to do more than survive financially; we need to have a jobs plan where all families can prosper.

States like Texas have capitalized on lower personal and business taxes, reduced government interference, expanded recruitment of companies to their state, and continued support for quality education. We can make Arizona strong again by modeling this type of success.

Smarter Security

I will fight to give local law enforcement the tools they need to be successful in securing our border, fighting illegal drugs, and curbing criminal activity.

Illegal immigration is a matter of national security;
but we must be smarter about it.

Arizona is on the front line of this issue, and it is up to us to take the lead and protect our borders with the latest technology and manpower.

Better Schools

Arizona's schools must return to emphasizing academics over social agendas. I will fight to reduce the increasing costs and growing bureaucracies that are holding back our schools.

Today, our kids are being programmed by a bureaucracy to become successful test takers; it's time to change this.

I will push to invest in the teachers and programs that truly make a positive impact on our children's futures. It is my goal to see Arizona schools setting the standard for education — not just keeping up appearances.
